

SLAIN AVIATOR WAS QUENTIN'S COMRADE

Lieut. Walter W. Smyth, Recently Killed, Belonged to 94th Aero Squadron.

WAS STUDENT AT YALE

Lieut. E. J. Fitzhugh, Wounded in Action, One of Three Brothers in Service.

Another one of the group of interlopers to which Lieut. Quentin Roosevelt belonged has made the supreme sacrifice. He is First Lieut. Walter M. Smyth, a member of Pursuit Group A, Ninety-fourth Aero Squadron, which is in service on the Marne front. Recent casualty lists contained the bare mention of the fact that Smyth had been killed, but failed to identify him or to give his home address.

It was learned yesterday that Lieut. Smyth was a son of the late John W. Smyth, who was once prominent on Wall Street. His mother lives at 267 Lexington avenue.

Lieut. Smyth was a student at Yale when the United States entered the war. He left college to enter the American Red Cross service and sailed for France as an ambulance driver in May, 1917. Later he joined the Lafayette Escadrille and after qualifying as an aviator the choice was given him of serving either under the French flag or the American flag. He made his choice without hesitation and was made a First Lieutenant in the United States flying force.

In addition to Lieut. Roosevelt, other distinguished members of Smyth's flying group were Lieut. Douglas Campbell, the first American ace, Lieut. Alan P. Winslow, the first American to shoot down a German plane in battle, and Lieut. Eddie Rickenbacker, Lieut. Winslow graduated from Hackley School before entering Yale.

One of Three Brothers Wounded. Lieut. Edward J. Fitzhugh, wounded in action in France according to yesterday's casualty lists, is one of three brothers in the service. His father is Arthur A. Fitzhugh of 42 Union avenue, Jamaica. He is 25 years old and a graduate of the Flatbush Officers Training School.

After receiving his commission he was assigned to an Alabama regiment in the Rainier Division, but was taken out with pneumonia just about the time that recovery left France. Upon his recovery he was transferred to Company F, Twenty-third Infantry. His brother, Roger, is a member of the Twenty-third Ambulance Company and his younger brother, Armand, is with the Sixth Engineers.

In a recent letter to his parents the young Lieutenant said he had been wounded in the left thigh, but was doing nicely.

Thanksgiving turkey in Berlin and home for New Year's are our schedule, and so far we are on time," wrote Corporal Henry D. Goodman of the Headquarters Company, 89th Infantry, in a letter to his father, who lives at 525 Greene avenue, Brooklyn. Yesterday's casualty lists carried the corporal's name among those killed in action.

Before entering the service in August, 1917, Goodman was a clerk in the naturalization bureau at Washington. He was 30 years old and a native of the City of New York. Later he attended law school and was admitted to practice just before joining the army.

A telegram from the War Department brought to Mrs. Harry D. Debois of 314 East Thirty-fourth street, Flatbush, yesterday the news that her son, Sergeant James E. Debois, had been killed in action on July 18. He was 17 years old when he enlisted last fall and lived at 295 Graham avenue, Brooklyn. He was a son of Snowden Bell.

Death Ends Romance. Private Raymond C. Frech, a member of Headquarters Company, Eighteenth Field Artillery, reported killed in action on Sunday, August 11, lived at 625 Elm street, Camden, and was 25 years old. He was engaged to Miss Ella Nearing, a clerk in the Quartermaster Department, stationed at Philadelphia, and planned to marry her the day he returned. After receiving word of her fiancée's death Miss Nearing volunteered for overseas service with the Quartermaster's Corps.

Frech, an orphan, enlisted in the navy when he was 16 years old and was twice wounded during the engagement at Vera Cruz. He also participated in the famous "Fight of Frolic" cruise and almost died of yellow fever in China. After serving two enlistments in the navy Frech joined the army and saw service on the Mexican border, where he was wounded in the hand during a raid at Fort Bliss. The day before he was killed he saved the life of another member of his regiment from Camden, N. J., who had been wounded in action.

Wagoner George W. Clark, reported severely wounded, is 21 years old and lived with his aunt, Mrs. Minnie Weeks, at 110 Bedford avenue, Brooklyn. He enlisted last year and was assigned to Company D, 160th Infantry, then stationed at Syracuse. He was sent overseas last January.

Private Nicholas D. Redhead of the Fifth Regiment, United States Marines, was reported in yesterday's casualty lists as among the missing in action, but his father, Charles D. Redhead of 383 Macdon street, Brooklyn, believes a mistake has been made, as he received a letter from his son on August 14 to the effect that the writer had been sent to a base hospital.

Redhead, then a clerk in a broker's office in Wall street, enlisted in the Marine Corps three days after war was declared by this country. He was with the first contingent of marines to reach France and was cited for the War Cross for saving the life of one of his company mates during the engagement at Chateau Thierry. His two brothers are in the service, one in the army and the other in the navy.

A memorial service in honor of Lieut. Samuel J. Reid, killed in action in France recently, will be held in Federal Judge Chaffin's chambers in Brooklyn on Friday afternoon, October 4. Lieut. Reid, known as "Sammy" Reid in his baseball days at Princeton, was made an Assistant United States Attorney in Brooklyn not long ago, but resigned to accept a commission in the army.

Another memorial service will be held for him at Grace Presbyterian Church,

Lafayette and Jefferson avenues, Brooklyn, next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock by the Rev. Robert Carson.
Private Samuel Solina of the Sixth Regiment, Marine Corps, who was reported missing after the engagement July 16, has since written a letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Israel Solina, 415 Milford street, East New York, from a hospital.

Private Solina said he had been gassed, but was on the high road to recovery. He said he had written sooner, but he said for the fact that he was too busy "going after the Hun." Solina is one of eighteen children, four of whom, counting himself, are in the service. His brother, Jacob, who with the Pershing expedition in Mexico and was wounded during one of the skirmishes with Villa's troops.

Private William H. Meyer, killed in action with a field artillery regiment August 12, was the son of Joseph Meyer, 220 Steinway avenue, Long Island City, N. Y., inspector for the New York and Queens County Railway Company.

"They got me in the chest and legs with shrapnel, and I am now in a hospital, sleeping in a bed for the first time in six months, but I am on the mend and will soon be back, giving the jerry hell," wrote Private Charles E. Solina in a recent letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Lambert, 180 Madison street, Brooklyn. Lambert is 26 years old and a member of Company C, 302d Field Signal Battalion. He was wounded August 20.

Henry Hornstein, a real estate dealer, 745 Kelly street, the Bronx, learned yesterday of the death of his son, Private David Hornstein of the 308th Infantry, who was killed in action July 26. The news came in a letter written from First Lieut. Ernest C. Bell of the 308th Regiment. Private Hornstein was a law student. He has a brother in the Marine Corps.

Expect the Same Clothing Values You Got Last Year—Nobody Has Them

Mark it well—NOBODY HAS THEM, because they are not obtainable ANYWHERE. Anybody who claims to have them errs in judgment.

But

This doesn't mean that GOOD clothing is a thing of the past. Nor does it mean that you can't get a GOOD suit at a reasonable price. Nor does it mean that you can't get—

An All-Wool Suit

You can get ALL of these—if you are careful—if you respect reliability and good judgment. But you must consider conditions as they are, not as they are often pictured.

The suit that you bought three years ago for $25 can't be bought today for $25. The reason is obvious—so why not acknowledge the fact and meet it without apology? But—

It Behooves Every Man

To have a higher regard for dependability as a concrete dollars-and-cents fact; and to beware of claims that mistake enthusiasm for truth.

Noise is not good business ammunition—for the purchaser; and value in
